

FIREMEN ANSWER SAME CALL TWICE

Man Turns in Alarm, Fails To Wait for Trucks To Arrive.

Two runs were made by firemen from the No. 3 station in answer to the same call Saturday night. Shortly after 9 p. m. the firemen answered a call from box 15 at the corner of Patton and Park streets. When they arrived they found no one in the vicinity, one neighbor said he had seen a man pull the box and then run east.

Satisfied that it was a false alarm the firemen returned to the station only to receive a second call by telephone from the home of Mrs. Emma Weston at 613 Hallen street, where a gas container had been broken and gas was pouring into the room. It developed that a young man, a member of the family, had pulled the box and had forgotten to wait for the firemen to arrive. The gas was shut off by the firemen.

At 12:25 a. m. yesterday morning firemen in the city answered a call from the corner of Silver and Senate streets where an automobile was reported to be on fire. The firemen were held up by a train at the Silver street crossing of the C. & O. and when they arrived at the scene the car had disappeared.

Firemen from the central and No. 2 stations answered a call to the home of Hazel Plekens at 502 Oswood street at 6:31 p. m. yesterday where sparks from a chimney had set fire to a shingle roof. The blaze was confined to a few shingles.

SLIGHT HURT PUTS HANE IN HOSPITAL

A nasal hemorrhage resulting from an injury last week, was suffered yesterday morning by John J. Hane of 365 east Church street. Hane's nose was slightly cut in an accident early Wednesday morning at the Greenwood street railroad crossing in which his car was wrecked.

He lost a quantity of blood in several hemorrhages yesterday and when the blood flow became more intense last night he was removed to the hospital. Blood congealing in the nostrils, the physician said this morning, and if the hemorrhages continue the loss of blood may prove to be serious.

14 Answer Call.

Fourteen men and women responded to the altar call last night at the First Pilgrim Holiness church. The auditorium was filled to capacity for yesterday's services. Rev. W. H. Lockwood, evangelist, spoke. Last night's sermon was based on Rev. 22:17. The evangelistic meetings will continue this week with sermons each night at 7:30.

DENVER GANG SOUGHT IN KIDNAPING PROBE

Came East in Airplane, Is New Report in Lindbergh Mystery.

Ohio, with the request that he investigate the circumstances reported and reply to his findings.

This matter is still under investigation and no report has been received as yet.

(Signed) Col. H. Nerman Schwarzkopf.

Picks Up New Leads

The 13th day of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.'s absence from his crib in the big white house on Highland mountain saw the police abandoning old leads for new ones.

One of them runs "between York, Pa., and various points in New Jersey," Col. Schwarzkopf, head of the police said early today.

Beyond saying that two investigators had been at York as the result of information obtained from Pennsylvania authorities, he refused to give details.

From York, a dispatch came in stating that it was an osteopath's story which started the investigation.

The osteopath, M. B. Shellberger, told police that a man, a woman and a baby came to his office and that the man said:

"Do you know whose baby this is? Well, that is the Lindbergh child, and tell him to get out of here."

Col. Schwarzkopf said the baby would be turned over to him at —.

Police withheld the places specified.

The osteopath said he obeyed and that the man then drew a pistol, warned him to be silent, and drove away with the woman and child.

The announcement came after police, declaring they had no further information to give, had been asked for a concrete nature leading to a solution of the case, held a conference in Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's home to plan the next steps in their search for the kidnapped child.

New Hope Blasted

Yesterday saw hope bloom and wither in the Lindbergh household on a long report that the child was "on his way."

Top authorities from that mountain community Sheriff Baxter Swigwood sent word he had detained four persons with a baby that was the image of the kidnapped child. When the news got around, they had to call on national guardsmen to control the throngs that jammed into the place eager to get a glimpse of "the most famous baby in the world."

But The Associated Press photographic service rushed a picture of the child by plane and telephone to the Lindbergh home, where the parents scanned it anxiously.

"No that's not our baby," they said.

In Crossville, however, authorities said they would hold the baby and adults a while.

The county sheriff, who was quoted by the sheriff as saying they had no home and were just "travelling around," said they were Mr. and Mrs. John M. Young and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Mitchell.

The operator of a tourist camp reported they had stopped at his place with a sign reading: "See the kid that resembles the Lindbergh baby. Admission 15 cents."

Pairs Different

Although a blond, curly-headed kid, the Lindberghs knew he was not their child because of a formation of his ears. In this connection, it was disclosed that in sending a description of the baby throughout the country, the Lindberghs held back certain distinguishing characteristics. They were able to cross-examine one who says he has the child.

Working behind the scenes, representatives of the Lindberghs were still trying to get the baby back, but the results will be carefully guarded.

Salvy Spitalo and Irving Bliz, two men named by the Lindberghs to deal with the kidnapers, were reported last night to be in New York. This, despite an announcement of their attorney that they would go to Detroit in pursuit of a clue.

There was no word from Morris Rosner, another "man of mystery" in the case, who said Saturday he "knew" the baby would be returned safe. He was reported to be in communication with the Lindbergh home, however, as he went about his "delicate" task.

Investigation of Ohio Clue Resumed

SANDUSKY, O., March 14—Still surrounded with secrecy, an investigation of a possible Sandusky clue to the Lindbergh kidnaping was resumed here today.

After questioning a man, whose name was unrevealed, Police Chief C. A. Weingates conferred with a Detroit detective, and then made a mysterious trip to an undisclosed locality.

Weingates, out of the city for about 15 hours, returned last night without comment.

Sheriff John W. Parker also claimed to have a clue to the kidnaping, but refused to divulge it.

He telephoned to New Jersey state police about it, however, and asked that an investigator be sent to aid him.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey police, after weighing what information Sheriff Parker supplied requested last night that the investigation be made by County Prosecutor Alvin F. Weichel.

The prosecutor said later he learned no details from the sheriff, but was hopeful of obtaining information today on the results of Police Chief Weingates' mysterious trip.

SHOOTS WRONG WOMAN

CLEVELAND, O., March 14—Mistaking her for his divorced wife, William Lavelle, 35, of Parma, Cleveland suburb, shot and killed Mrs. Henrietta Linderman, 37, at her home Saturday night and then committed suicide.

Mrs. Lavelle was a guest at the Linderman home.

Senator Caraway Gives "Happy Marriage" Rules

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON—Two rules for a successful marriage are suggested by Sen. Hiram Caraway, first woman ever elected United States senator.

One rule is to realize always that the other partner to the marriage contract has outside interests. The other is for the wife to believe in and respect her husband's judgments and decisions.

"Though she holds one of the most advanced and modern positions in official life, Mrs. Caraway has very 'old-fashioned' ideas regarding marriage."

Should Permit Freedom

"Married couples make a mistake in trying to control every bit of each other's time and personality," she says. "They should have mutual aims and companionship, of course, but they should also respect each other's individuality and freedom."

A wife who really thinks her husband is always right has smoothed away many marital difficulties. Of course, a woman should marry a man for whom she has respect and admiration in the beginning.

To her senate office, with mail stacked round her and three men secretaries and stenographers at work in an adjoining room, Mrs. Caraway occasionally slips back into memory of her 20 years of married life.

Nothing pleases her more than a compliment for the late Senator Thaddeus Caraway. She likes to recall little incidents in his political life.

He would do a favor for a man he personally disliked if he thought the man deserved it," she says. "He was always impartial and fair in his decisions."

The little black-gowned senator is showing something of her late husband's firmness in dealing with problems which best her. She has refused decisively to make any speeches via platform, radio, or news reels. She believes it would be in poor taste so soon after her election.

She will not accept a purely "woman's reputation" just because it is such, though she was besieged on taking office by groups of women championing various measures.

No Longer Bored

Now they have all fallen back, the movie men, the women lobby, the politicians, leaving her pretty much alone to concentrate on her work. She is satisfied.

She goes home at night to the big house in Madison known as the Lord Calver mansion, which she has occupied for years. Two sons, both in the army, live with her. A faithful Negro servant runs the house.

Sometimes they have hot biscuits, the kind the late Senator Caraway liked. And much of the time the talk is of "dad."

DEMAND DEATH FOR HONOLULU ATTACKER

Third Assault in Two Weeks Stirs Hawaiian City; Chinese Girl Victim.

HONOLULU, March 14—The third assault upon a woman on Oahu island within two weeks brought demands today that the attacker be given the death penalty under a recently enacted law.

The victim, Bernice Lum, 17-year-old Chinese girl, identified Joseph Young, a Korean-Hawaiian, as the man who assaulted her Saturday night. Young is in jail here.

Mrs. Lum said she and Gilbert Haim, another Chinese, had left a private dance near Waikiki and were sitting on some neighboring steps when Young approached and ordered the slightly-built Haim to "scram."

When the girl's escort obeyed, Mrs. Lum told police, Young choked and assaulted her.

Chief of Police C. F. Weeber led the demand for the death penalty.

John Fernandez, a Portuguese recently sentenced to life imprisonment the same day he was assaulted by a Japanese woman. Two weeks before the attack upon Mrs. Lum, Mrs. Kathleen Hope, wife of a naval man, was assaulted.

Most notorious of the city's recent crimes was the assault upon Mrs. Thomas Masie, wife of a naval lieutenant, last September and the lynching of one of her suspected assailants, Joseph Kahawai, Hawaiian, Jan. 8.

WOMAN INJURED IN FALL ON ICE

Mrs. W. C. Houpt of 132 south High street suffered injuries to her leg when she slipped and fell at noon today while crossing Center street at State street.

Mrs. Houpt was crossing from the north to the south side of the street and slipped on a thin layer of ice. She was taken to City hospital in the C. E. Curtis Co. ambulance. An X-ray examination will be taken to determine whether the fall resulted in a fracture.

Tax Blanks Arrive.

Blanks on which corporation shareholders must list their stock for taxation are available at the office of County Auditor Earl E. Thomas, he announced today.

A supply may be obtained by calling or writing the auditor's office, he said. A number of persons have been waiting several days on the arrival of the blanks, known as form No. 939.

Change in Name Reveals Amazing Case of Amnesia

By International News Service

BOWLING GREEN, O., March 14—Back in 1920 a deliveryman employed by a Pittsburgh express company suddenly quit, signing delivery receipts with the name of "Orla Anderson" and started signing them "J. O. Meek."

Unable to explain why he was convinced that his name was Meek instead of Anderson when he was called before his employer, he was discharged.

And, thus, it has just been revealed, J. O. Meek was put on the road to discovering himself the victim of one of the strangest cases of amnesia yet told. The end of the tale at last appears.

Since that day, Meek has found that he served in the U. S. Marines during the war, that he had been married, and that soon after the wedding he and his bride settled on a homestead near Robinson, O.

He had disappeared and had been given up by all his kin as the victim of murderers.

The fact that he had married a young widow, Mrs. Rose Rhoubright, at New Kensington, Pa., after he suffered his loss of memory, would have proved an embarrassing circumstance in the unwinding of the tale of his amnesia but for the fact that the bride of his youth also had remarried.

Vital Clue Lacking

What gave him the clue that his real name was Meek has not yet been learned. If that can be determined, the story will be cleared up in most principal details.

The revelation about his past came after he decided to submit his finger prints to army officials to learn whether he might have served in the war and suffered injuries that caused his condition.

When came back that his prints had been found in the navy files. He was skeptical—he was sure he had never been in the navy. Later it was found that he had instead enlisted in the Marines under the name of Joseph Antrepot, from Trinidad, Colo.

Writing to Colorado in an effort to trace the clue, he found that a child who was named Jo Meek was born in Trinidad, in Las Animas county, on Nov. 25, 1891, the birth date given by Joseph Antrepot, when he joined the Marines.

A check-up with the parents of the Jo Meek born in Trinidad, who was named Joseph Antrepot, Colo., brought the information that their son had disappeared, supposedly having been murdered at his Oregon homestead by hostile sheep men who resented his efforts to change a range into farm land.

The "murder" was packed with mystery. J. O. Meek having been summoned by telegram to the bedside of a brother, who was reported seriously ill. Later it was shown the brother was not ill and the telegram was faked. This strengthened the murder theory in the disappearance.

One of the strangest parts in the story is that one of the men held for a time as a suspect in the case was named Joseph Antrepot, the name given by Meek when he enlisted in the Marines.

For two years after his first marriage, Meek found, he was a student of medicine at Denver.

BIRD TALKS PAY STUDENT'S WAY

COLUMBUS, O., March 14—Robert H. McCormick is working his way through Ohio State university by talking about birds.

Before lunch on clubs, women's clubs, garden and biology clubs, fraternities, classrooms or wherever he can secure engagements, this 22-year-old student discusses the habits of birds, which he knows as well as the average student knows his golf. Since he was 9, McCormick has poked among Ohio's 88 counties, studying the feathered creatures and photographing them in their native retreats. Now he talks about what he has found and on the proceeds is acquiring higher education.

New Hair and Hat Ensembles
Court Charm of Earlier Day

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

Right now is the most exciting and interesting period in hair and hat styles we've had for some time! Both the hair styles and the hats offered for our delectation are utterly charming, combining the feminine charm and quaintness of yesterday with the smartness and comfort of our rosy-holiday, forenoon recently, but only temporarily, it would seem, for the truly feminine influence.

In my mail today came three adaptations of the new modes, sent by one of our foremost hat dressers, showing the new coiffures with and without hats, so that I would have no need to check the compatibility of the two. I can't tell you about all three of them in this one article, but watch this column closely, for within the next few days all three styles will be described, as well as the types of hats they were designed to blend with.

The first one, designed to reconcile the hair and hat to the Watteau period, is so completely modern, that it makes one desirous of indulging immediately in hair cuts and bonnets.

This particular hairdress has been worked out so that the young girl who spent all last year cultivating curls can use them again, thank goodness; for nothing so accentuates the youth and charm of the grownup teens as the intelligent use of ringlets.

The New Hairdress

Here we have the front hair wave. A left side part is favored, so that a soft wave falls half way down on the forehead, directly over the center of a delicately arched brow. The pushed back part of the wave is placed just over the temple, so that it arches back from the end of the eyebrow. A second, wider and deeper wave comes out onto the cheek and is finished off with a definite, off-the-lobe-of-the-ear line, to fall into a soft cluster of quite-closely-cropped, curled ends in the back. The left side is waved to match the right.

The lines of the waves, as they leave the forehead and cheek, are upward, definitely, toward the crown of the head. Without this

Tips on CONTRACT

TAKEOUT DOUBLES

By Tom O'Neil

Doubling of an opponent's bid to compel one's partner to bid often is a successful method of arriving at the correct contract in bridge.

Novices at times get into trouble with such doubles because their hands are too weak. An information, or takeout double, should be made primarily on strength, and secondarily on weakness of the suit doubled. Indeed, an information double is often advisable when the doubler holds the ace and most of the suit doubled.

The doubler must be prepared usually to support a response in hearts or spades especially if one of those major suits has been bid by an opponent.

Minimum requirements for the double ordinarily are three honor tricks.

Such a double is not made when partner has bid. In that instance the double would indicate a possibility of the opponent being set.

The great advantage of the information double is that without danger it shows partner a much stronger hand than would be revealed by a bid of a suit required for defensive overcalls being much less than the standards for opening bids.

Information doubles in tournament

ments often have resulted in game being made by the partner of the doubler on four-card suits containing no honors. Here is a typical doubling situation:

WEST	EAST
♠9876	♠AKQ2
♥543	♥A2
♦KJ9	♦J6543
♣AK9	♣64

Assume that north opens the bidding with one heart. East's cards are better than a normal hand. His longest suit, diamonds, is too weak to bid.

One stopper in hearts is insufficient for a no trump. An overall with spades might be troublesome. If east doubles west will answer with two spades, east will indicate satisfaction with spades by a raise and then west will contract for game, which should be made having unfavorable distribution.

TO BREAK UP
A COLD
IN A JIFFY

Feel Like a New Person
In Just a Little While

People have found out that new-fangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and use what they know breaks one up in a jiffy.

The thing to do is to get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water—two—that's all.

Soon you'll start to feel like a new person. Things will loosen up, your head will clear, aching goes—you'll be back on the job with a wallop.

Get Hill's now. It is a scientific formula made to do one thing well: to knock a cold—not to cure a thousand ailments. Get your money back if it doesn't work with twice the speed of anything else you've ever tried.

'SHANGHAI EXPRESS' STARRING DIETRICH AT PALACE THEATER

"Shanghai Express" at the Palace tonight and Tuesday is an above-the-average talking picture product because of Joseph von Sternberg's interesting development of the story of a train bound from Peking to Shanghai. The photography is excellent. The train bears
Marlene Dietrich, "Shanghai Lily," a notorious adventuress, Clive Brook, an English army officer and her lover of five years ago, and a motley collection of passengers, including May Wong and Warner
Oland, chief of the rebel forces.
His armies hold up the train and many soldiers which the train is carrying for protection are shot.
One of his men has been captured as a spy and he holds Brook as hostage. He makes advances to Dietrich and when she hears that he is going to blind Brook, she agrees to his bargain and Brook is freed. Anna May Wong kills Oland and the express continues on its way. Brook's love for her returns when he learns later of her attempts to save him from torture and the story ends happily.

A comedy, newsreel and diving short completes the bill. H. H.

MODERN YOUTH IN OHIO PICTURE

Helen Foster plays the role of a high school girl who mixes with a fast crowd of youngsters and nearly pays the price of her pleasure-loving in "Primrose Path," which will close Wednesday at Ohio. A two-reel picture, "Footlights," is an entertaining revue short.

Impressed with the moral story of "The Primrose Path," which deals with the drinking, parked car parties and recklessness of high school boys and girls. The picture was made by an independent producer and is better directed and acted than the usual run of these films. John Darrow, Dorothy Granger, Mary Carr and DeWitt
Jennings have leading roles.

A newsreel completes the program. H. H.

BEN LYON GOOD IN MARION PICTURE

Ben Lyon does nice work in his starring picture, "The Big Timer," which will close Tuesday night at the Marion. Ben plays the role of a boxer who rises from hometown bouts to Madison Square garden with his charming wife, Constance Cummings, as his manager. He meets Thelma Todd and her wealthy crowd and decides that he and his wife should go Park avenue with all the trimmings and that his face is too good-looking to spoil with real boxers. Their savings to buy a string of hamburger wagons is exhausted and he blames his wife.
She leaves him and he quickly descends the ladder of popularity.
His wife is now tight manager in a big office and she wins him back by a scheme of hers to show him what a coward he has been. A cartoon comedy and newsreel are on the bill. H. H.

INFECTED PERSONS SPREAD COLDS

EPIDEMIC of COLDS

—the true test of Bromo Quinine

Cold infection (ultravirus) is sweeping through the community. Correct treatment must be used to stamp it out.

The cold germs are in the air... you breathe them into the system... they multiply rapidly... then you begin to feel the distressing symptoms.

This is no time for temporary relief treatments... the infection must be destroyed and expelled from within.

Take a few Bromo Quinine tablets promptly —at the first signs of a cold—then follow simple directions. Proved safe and effective by millions of people all over the world.

Daily Proverb—"He that has no rest at home is in the world's hell."

Helding the Y. M. C. A. building in Muncie, Indiana, the police arrested six young men roomers who were caught playing penny ante with a total of $1.01 on the table. Isn't the growth of the gambling spirit simply awful?

Civilization may be "on the blink," as so many writers and speakers are inclined to hold, but its crumbling doesn't seem to have affected Uncle Sam's credit. The subscriptions to the $800,000,000 offering of treasury certificates to go on the market tomorrow totaled $3,402,725,500. In other words, the two issues were oversubscribed three and a half times.

"New Moves by Japan Worry Washington."—Headline over a story from the national capital. Let us hope that the worry will not reach the stage where Secretary Stimson will feel that the situation demands another of his characteristic notes.

Vigilantes out in McHenry county, Indiana, came upon three burglars as they were about to leave a home with a truckload of property and captured the three of them after a lively chase in which one of the burglars was wounded. Some system to the work of the Hoosier vigilantes. This was the fifth good job within three weeks, the other four being in bank and store hold-ups.

From one to three years in prison was the sentence given a New York City racketeer, last week, for collecting a fund which he held out was to pay detectives to search for the Lindbergh baby, and the amazing phase of the thing is that he received subscriptions running as high as $100. New York City must be a city of easy marks when a game like that can be put over on it!

Dr. James B. Conant, head of the department of chemistry of Harvard university, has announced that the production of synthetic food from air and sunshine is nearer solution than ever before. Won't it be great when we can repose in the sunshine and breathe in food? But there's always the fly in the ointment. When that time comes what will we do for a lot of our radio programs?

Setting out that the total payroll of the farm board and its subsidiaries is $2,787,000 annually, Senator Borah, last week charged it amounted to "legalized graft." A little thing like a talent of graft, however, will hardly reduce the appeal of the salaries to those drawing them.

Dr. Ivan Bratt told the American Club of Paris, last week, that, since Sweden had adopted the liquor control plan bearing his name, alcoholism had fallen off seventy-one per cent and crimes of violence attributed to drunkenness, sixty-six per cent. The thing may look good, at first glance, for adoption over here, but the crimes in this country attributed to drunkenness are not bothering us so much as the crimes financed by the profits of the illegal sale of the stuff that produces drunkenness.

Water on Both Shoulders.

Americans have been examining the new federal tax bill with a feeling blended from amazement, anger, curiosity, fear and regret. They grant that severe measures are necessary to balance the budget. They admit that the ways and means committee has done its best to raise the money in the fairest and easiest ways possible. They do not believe the senate will be able to make many important changes in the bill without defeating its purpose, but they are still apprehensive of the effect of higher taxation on lower incomes.

Charles R. Crisp, chairman of the house ways and means committee, adds confusion and doubt to doubt by announcing that his committee, its taxation work ended, now will go to work on a new veterans' bonus bill, calling for immediate appropriation of $2,300,000,000. It is Mr. Crisp's belief that the house will pass this bill. There is considerably more than an outside chance that the senate, too, will pass it. The puzzled people, who are about to turn their pockets inside out to balance the budget in the next fiscal year and who will be called upon eventually to balance the budgets for the current and preceding fiscal years, can take a little cheer from assurance that President Hoover will veto the bill, if passed, and that congress probably will not re-pass it.

The estimated deficit for the next fiscal year is $1,410,000,000. This year's deficit estimate hovers around $3,000,000,000. Last year's deficit was a little short of $1,000,000,000. Yet, there is talk of distributing $2,300,000,000 among the veterans. When it comes to carrying water on both shoulders, Georgia's best-known Democrat, Charles R. Crisp, is a likely prospect for a vaudeville contract.

Planes and Dirigibles.

Machinery for carrying human beings in the air is losing rapidly the attraction of novelty. At the same time it is settling into categories of usefulness.

The unpleasantness at Shanghai has done a vast deal to explode claims that the next war will be fought by airplanes. Japan's experience proves that planes alone can not do the job. They strike terror to the hearts of the enemy, they do great damage and are invaluable for observation purposes, but they can not transport troops, and it is men who win wars, not machines. Nations which are developing military airplanes realize their limitations.

England's announcement that the Schneider trophy air races never will be held again reveals another recent development of thought in aviation. Speed, in itself, is not an end that justifies any means. England was successful in building the world's fastest airplane, yet the product was impractical because of the tremendous expense involved and the unusual danger entailed in operating it.

Simultaneously with the announcement that there will be no more Schneider cup races, backers of the Pacific Zeppelin Transport corporation and the International Zeppelin Transport corporation made it known that they are ready to spend $15,000,000 for commercial super-dirigibles to fly between the United States and the Orient and between the United States and Europe, if congress will extend them mail contract privileges. They are positive that dirigible transportation between continents can be sold on its merits.

A third bit of information showing how air machinery is finding its uses is from the South, where many plantations consider the airplane as a necessary unit of equipment useful in distributing insecticides and getting perishable products to markets quickly. Other stories of recent date have concerned reduced rates for airplane travel and improved types of planes. The science of aeronautics grew up during the World war, but it is finding its real usefulness in the unexciting work of peace.

Attack and Counter-Attack.

The nature of the Sino-Japanese conflict is reflected with reasonable accuracy in the structure of the news dispatches telling about it. One paragraph is devoted to outright developments and proposals. Ten others usually are required to explain why the developments are not what they appear to be, and why the proposals can not be accepted by one or both of the interested parties. The warriors sitting behind desks in diplomatic offices are fighting harder than the ones wading in Chinese canals and plodding through rice fields.

The League of Nations launched its three-point program for peaceful settlement of the trouble Friday. The program itself is to be commended for simplicity. It states that agreements reached by military pressure will not be recognized, accepts China's thesis that the league is competent to deal with the entire question, and sets up machinery within the league to pursue the effort to bring about evacuation of Japanese forces from Chinese territory.

Its simplicity soon will be buried beneath landmines of objection and upheavals of protests, however. Japan can produce more explanations and practice more evasion than a Philadelphia lawyer. China, the witness for the prosecution in the diplomatic case, is a good second. Add half a dozen lengthy notes of protest from the United States, a few dozen opinions by authorities elsewhere and a continuous rumble of gunfire from the trouble area itself, and there is a muddled situation which the world has ceased to try to understand. The United States sees light clearly only in one quarter. Five American destroyers are on their way home and neutral powers are reducing their emergency strength in Shanghai. War fever is abating.

The Complete Washington.

It is an incidental purpose of the George Washington bicentennial commission to give Americans a complete picture of the distinguished man who was to become known as the "Father of His Country." If the year's observance of the greatest American's 200th birthday can help to acquaint present-day beneficiaries of his nobility and vision with his particular qualities of greatness, it almost will have earned its way.

Every one knows of Washington, the soldier. That is part of the foreground material in the American background. Similarly, his achievements as a frontiersman and statesman are fairly familiar to all. It is when exploration extends further to his capabilities as an engineer, a distinguished country gentleman, a literary scholar and an inspirational writer that the average wayfarer begins to falter and doubt the rightness of his bearings.

George Washington was all these things. For purposes of historic appreciation he did nothing which he did not do well. A military genius, he also created one of the most important fields of American literature—his own letters, a mass of precious material filling twenty-five volumes. His diary and account books are as invaluable to scholars as appreciation and knowledge of his military achievements are to patriots.

And Washington did even more. There is another facet to his great character which, left unnoticed, would balk any effort to form a complete picture. The historian of the bicentennial commission has revealed only recently that the greatest American actually ordered Martha Washington's dresses and did so good a job of it that she liked them. A man like that couldn't have been kept from greatness.

Nova Scotia netted $303,396 on its Christmas tree sales last year. Despite the efforts of atheists and infidels generally, to say nothing of the anti-religious warfare of the bolsheviks of soviet Russia, the Christmas spirit still lives.

Awakened, as he was being dragged from his bed by his police dog, to find his home in flames, a citizen of Rock Island, Illinois, escaped with a few burns, but his dog was overcome by smoke and found dead on the floor when firemen arrived. "Greater love hath no man—"

"AND WHEN THE PIE WAS OPENED—"

Editorial Opinion.

THE WASTE IN WASHINGTON.

No less than a billion dollars a year is wasted in the cost of the federal government, such is the opinion of some who have studied the subject, who estimate that half that amount is spent for unnecessary offices and employees while the other half is lost through the resulting inefficiency.

Now that bloated Uncle Sam is forced to wear the income clothes of several years ago he finds reducing a painful operation. Failing completely to cut government salaries to any former level the Congress fathers savagely turned their attention to the extermination of superfluous and super-imposed government offices, agencies, councils and commissions, which stand out like warts on the civic nose. The ax was laid at foot of this growth by the president, who repeated to congress his standing request of the last ten years for the consolidation of bureaus and the general program of the Washington establishment. Congress has long been futilely trying to do some of the needed trimming and pruning, but, as Secretary of Commerce Hoover said back in 1925, there always has been "a confusing fog of opposition." Now congressmen are talking as if they meant business and the need for action was never so great as it is at this very moment.

Let us see how the thing has grown—or swelled. In 1800 when the federal government moved to Washington, when the national population was 3,300,000, the "office clerks" numbered fifty-four. Today in the ten departments, 14 subsidiary bureaus and thirty-five independent establishments there are employed more than 800,000 persons. Growth in the number of government employees has been 400 times as great as the increase in population. In 1820 there was one federal employee for every 113 inhabitants; in 1920 there was one for every 100 inhabitants. In 1850 federal expenditures amounted to $1.93 per capita; in 1900 they had increased to $8.20 per capita; while in 1930 the appropriation of nearly $5,000,000,000 amounted to $38.42 per capita.—The Pathfinder.

Award was the first long-distance message that clicked over the telegraph wire in 1844 as Dr. Samuel F. B. Morse, its inventor, talked in dots and dashes from Baltimore to Washington, forty miles away.

"What hath God wrought?" was his pious dispatch. Entering was the first long-distance message just sent via more awe-inspiring invention, the radio telephone, as Secretary of the Interior Wilbur chatted through clerks' hands, wire and ether with Governor Judd, of Hawaii, eleven days later. "It's balmy weather here. The temperature was sixty-one degrees minimum, seventy-three degrees maximum, and it was seventy-five yesterday. How's the weather in Washington?"

Secretary Wilbur:—"Instead of answering the question I'll ask you how many times it rained there yesterday." Informed that there had been no rain, Wilbur said: "Well, that was an unusual day." Then followed more pleasantries about dredging appropriations for Honolulu harbor.

What a whale of a difference just a few decades make!—New York World-Telegram.

INTERNATIONAL BANKING.

While the senate finance committee has been trying to discover what, if any, protection is given the American purchaser of foreign bonds by the New York syndicates which sell them, it has raised another interesting question—the amount of profit made by these syndicates. It has discovered that on sales of bonds amounting to $5,890,175,000, the "spread profits"—that is, the difference between what the syndicates turned over to the bond-issuing governments and the amount the syndicates received for the bonds from the American purchasers—were $106,501,880, or 3 1/2 per cent.

That 3 1/2 per cent, apparently includes three profits, to judge by Otto Kahn's testimony—one for the firm that takes over the bonds from the foreign government and pays for them; one for the firm that supplies the money for that purchase; and one for the firm that retails the bonds in this country. But those firms, said Mr. Kahn, are generally the same people, acting in three different capacities.

What are the risks that justify such a profit?—Detroit News.

Threat or Promise?

Mayor Cermak says because of the financial situation it may be necessary to close City Hall in Chicago. Wonder if the Windy City residents regard that as a threat or a promise?—Hartford Times.

The Word of God.

Grave not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.—Eph. 4:30.

Operations Rid of Terrors.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In the writings of William Thomas Green Morton, the discoverer of anesthesia, is found this:

"I saturated my handkerchief and inhaled from it. I looked at my watch and soon lost consciousness. As I recovered I felt a numbness in my limbs and I would have given the world for some one to come and arouse me. I thought for a minute that I would die at that state and the world would only pay to bury me."

Thus wrote the young medical student about his early experiences with anesthesia. It is now more than eighty-five years since this experiment was conducted. Since then, advances have been made in the anesthesia, but the expectations and hopes of young Morton.

It is difficult for one living in this age to realize the conditions that existed before the discovery of anesthesia, when an operation was an ordeal that few could endure. At that time the operating room was correctly referred to as a "chamber of horrors," and it was necessary for attendants to hold the patient on the operating table.

Now the most difficult and prolonged operation can be performed without pain. Surgery has been perfected by the aid of proper anesthesia, and today saves thousands of lives which otherwise would be lost.

Since Morton's great discovery, other forms of anesthesia have been developed. The most common anesthetics used are ether, ethylene, chloroform, nitrous oxide and oxygen. The gases are inhaled and produce a state of unconsciousness.

In local anesthesia a drug such as novocaine is injected into the area to be operated on. Of course this means of producing anesthesia can be used only in a limited class of cases. This method is most often used by dentists. Within recent years tremendous interest has been aroused in a new method of preventing operative pain, called "spinal anesthesia." In this method anesthesia is produced by the injection of a local anesthetic, like novocaine, into the spinal fluid. In this form of anesthesia the patient is awake during the operation, but feels no pain.

I can well understand why surgery, and the mere thought of an operation, was dreaded before the discovery of anesthesia, which has abolished the pain and unnecessary torture of surgery.

May I testify to several personal experiences? Please believe me when I say that it is nothing to be dreaded. It is amazing how quickly one drops into unconsciousness, and the sleep that follows is so prolonged that there remains no memory of the experience.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUESTIONS.

R.J.S. Q.—Is it harmful to reduce by taking

A.—Not advisable. You should eat very sparingly of starches, sugars and fats. Get regular systematic exercise. A gradual reduction in the amount of food consumed, with the regular exercise will work wonders in most cases.—Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it can not be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, upon request, send a proper one, worded personally, if a self-addressed stamped envelope is enclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, in care of this paper.

Where Would We Be?

It is a grand idea to have the international debts settled in commodities, but if Germany pays in beer, that leaves the United States high and dry.—Boston Transcript.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Thursday, March 14. The warden and three guards in the state penitentiary in Lincoln, Nebraska, were killed in an outbreak by the prisoners.

The Star reported the birth of a daughter, the night before to Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Brady, of East Mark street, and a son, the same night, to Mr. and Mrs. George Paque, of North State street.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Rapp, of Usher avenue, and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Luxon, of Fies avenue.

"Vast Sum Available for School Purposes" was the headline over a story in the Star stating that the fund for county school purposes for the next six months was $90,000, of which the local board would get $40,336.70.

Marion people became interested in an enterprise to manufacture imitation marble here. Friends were booming Judge William E. Scofield for a member of the Ohio supreme court. The erection of a temporary block on the Diobold property at the northeast corner of Main and Church streets was being planned. Marion Lodge No. 662, Knights of Pythias, gave a fine entertainment at its hall.

Sex Appeal Sox Shops.

BY MARY KNIGHT

Paris, Mar. 14.—P.—A new sex appeal sex shop has opened here with its sales girls acting as mannequins. When not waiting on customers they sit up and down the shop lifting their skirts to show a dimpled knee encased in the finest silk mesh, and even being more daring in demonstrating the non-run garter.

State's prize beyond dispute that more men buy women's hose than women do, and the new sex appeal sex shop, at the end of a restless day, soft business hours are provided, and the obliging mannequins will remove their hostess to try the new mesh for evening. Search and find reveal each toe carefully and with satisfying snick, matching a similar pair of garters. Thus fingers and toes are clad impartially, and when short gloves are worn, the individual toes also are ankle length. A mannequin sometimes appears on the instep and the reverse of the hand, in which case the sandal has one strap around the ankle and another just across the base of the toes, to permit the decoration to show without being hampered by the shoe.

With the sex appeal sex shop, the proprietors are considering opening a chain of stores on the continent, with a possible exclusive shop in America.

"This is No. 32 I am wearing, whole silk—even the tips you can believe me—and your wife will like them," says a mannequin as she wends her way past the lolling surveyors of sex, and lifts just a bit of her black gown to give weight to her words. "I have on champagne No. 9 and never felt better in my life," another may say. The only rule of the house is that the prospective customers must not feel the silk.

As It Was in the Beginning.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

Franklin county was established March 30, 1800, and some of the entries in the journal of the county commissioners for the first few years are interesting because of the sidelights they throw on the life of the day. Peter Sells was paid seven dollars for listing the taxable property in Franklin township. Joseph Vance drew $4.75 for surveying a road from Frankfort to Worthington, and Lucas Sullivant nine dollars for surveying one from Frankfort to Irving Creek. J. Downing, Joseph Fleming, and John Little each were paid two dollars for wolf scalps. Thomas Scott was paid $30 for his services as prosecuting attorney, while Joseph Fous drew $20 as pay for ten days' service as common pleas judge.

Lucas Sullivant drew $10 as a half year's pay as clerk of the courts. Joseph Park was paid six dollars for the use of his house for the court, and for firewood.

William Domigan received $2.50 for the use of his house by the county commissioners. Jacob Grubb drew fifty cents for making a palot box.

Sheriff Adam Hosack was paid $150 for calling the grand jury. Sullivant was awarded the contract for building the courthouse for $4,308. March 4, 1806, Sharon township was established. October 24, of that year, Joseph Dawson was paid $350 for services as coroner, and each of the twelve jurors called to assist him, fifty cents.

The case is interesting. A man named Huchey Grant was found dead in the wood southwest of Frankfort. He apparently had fallen from a tree. Grant traded a small farm in Pennsylvania for 400 acres in what is now Jackson township. He was a fine marksman, a noted hunter and greatly feared by the Indians. It was found that he had located a beehive on his tract, and tried to climb up to get the honey. In doing so he slipped and fell to his death.

Dinner Stories.

"You must fit yourself to be the companion of the plain citizens in their customary amusements," declared the campaign adviser. "Not in my home town," answered Senator Sorghum. "I couldn't possibly learn to keep late hours at all the night clubs."

"Has your wife started her spring cleaning yet?" "Yes, she's cleaned me out buying spring clothes."

"The police are mercilessly criticized," remarked the official.

"Why don't they take a hint from some of the motion picture stars and ask Mrs. Cayenne. 'You mean, remain impervious?'" "No. Employ stenographers and dictate their own publicity."

Theosophist—"Does your husband believe his soul leaves his body while he sleeps?" Mrs. Tompkins—"I can't say as to that, but he's got a suspicion that his money leaves his pockets."

Harold—"Mummy, we're going to play elephants at the zoo and I want you to come." Mother—"What on earth can I do?" Harold—"You can be the lady who gives them peanuts and candy."

"I'm afraid I'm getting old." "Oh, nonsense?" "I really am. When I was young I longed for things to happen—now I hope they won't."

First Girl—"Dick says he came from a good family." Second Girl—"Yeh, and I'll bet he's footsore."

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, March 14.—Diary of a day. Peppy: This day determining to live work walls with built-in book shelves and fastening with Irvin Cobb on stewed meat and Major Dickson's peppery sausage through town, meeting Frank Hope, the son of Great Neck, and Arthur Moss from Pa. Then to the Essex to say farewell to H. Menken against her trek to Hollywood, to Remick, picking up my wife at a modest, to Remick, apartment where Frank Buck, the mythical hunter, told of a fight to death between a cobra and tiger near Singapore, as well as a tale as ever I heard.

In the evening to the Messmore Kennedy dinner, sitting between two charming and Claire Booth Brokaw and Mrs. George F. Maurice. And among others there were Kingsley, Donald Freeman, the Dick Lays and Yascha Bunchuk's orchestra played Gypsy tunes.

A spooky tale, with a death-ray twist, in the rounds. A Hindu mystic at a party in Sutton Place related lunatic mysticism in the Far East. And the story of death-rays in future was came up. I never believed that some day control ray minds would kill. The hostess scoffed and wine flowed, became a trifle vitriolic toward her Oriental guest. Departing, he bowed her hand and murmured: "I suggest, Madam, look into her gold fish bowl." She did the fish float lifeless at the top. Boy, pucker your mouth!

I confess to no belief in mind reading, yet recently saw a manifestation of its trick, that left a roomful of intelligent people speechless. The diversion was offered at home of M. H. Aylesworth, following a dim party. The mentalist was a Valentino-like fellow, named Dunninger, suavity dripping with mystic abracadabra. Guests were asked to write questions on anything in their position—envelopes, cuffs or what not. Contrary to the usual custom these questions were collected. Each questioner took a glorious naive oath to not having seen or ever thought of the mind reader. All were asked to concentrate on questions they had written.

My wife, for instance, wrote: "Who is K. and where born?" Nothing else. After writing the question secretly she placed it in my case. No one came near. The mess suddenly exclaimed: "K. G. is Kate Garrow. Your mother's maiden name. She was born May 1, 1854, in Gallipolis, Ohio." The answer was absolutely correct. I spent the rest of the evening pecking under chairs. Fifty of the questions were so answered.

In the midst of the performance, a girl received a telephone call from Los Angeles about a business matter. This could have been a frame-up, so happened it was. The Los Angeles caller was asked to think a number in four digits. As he did, the reader jotted them down, like guesses on a blackboard. And Jim Quirk, seated on the left, put on his hat and coat and in a tension of delirium made a chalk-faced, trying desperately to smooth down a sudden pompadour.

Personal nomination for the most pleasant voice among radio announcers—Frank Knight. Thimbubbs: Frank Crownshield, the celebrated social giant, never tasted into eating liquor. M. H. Aylesworth, the chief, has a built-in radio in every room of his apartment. Roy M. Howard was born in a toll-gate house in Gano, Ohio. Bob Scripps says ever since he has been trying to collect. Tom Heath, of McIntyre, Heath, chews tobacco during his act. The Tuskegee choir of 150 voices will sing spirituals at the Radio City music hall. Katherine Brush has the most complete equipped modernistic study in town in fashionable Sutton Place neighborhood. The tenor in the Men About Town radio is a former Campbellite evangelist.

A venerable shawled woman nodded on camp chair at the Plaza entrance to the patrician hand held a thin leash of color balloons. A jovial guest with expansive pout and fat cigar came along, held the lighted end to the ambient strand until it flared in a soap-suds sheen. Then he pressed a $1 bill in her hand, smiled, tipped his hat and went on. Fun in the city!—Copyright, 1932, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Versailles, the Beautiful.

BY TEMPLE MANNING

Surely it is very fitting that American dollars are providing the work of restoration of the world's greatest animated history book. For how many chapters there are in the history of Versailles that are inextricably bound up in our own history and national life! As how many people there are who just look up the visit to Versailles as a casual excursion, necessary tribute to history and culture, as were, when a few hours can be spared away from that dear Paris.

But to the student, the palace and garden of glorious Versailles are alive with myth and romance. I, myself, have never made a journey there without thoughts of Benjamin Franklin coming proudly to Versailles, ready to sign the treaty by which the United States of America, at Versailles, too, a few years later, the treaty was signed in which England recognized the hard-fought-for but gloriously won independence.

Surely, when Louis XIV engaged on the day of making a royal residence out of the ruins of his predecessor, Louis XIII, he never imagined that it would, centuries later, form the setting for some of the world's most splendid historic episodes and that its splendor would some day indirectly bring about the fall of the French monarchy. And, viewing it is not difficult to visualize a madman, the people, hungry, desperate, determined to

Harding Loses Torrid Battle to Columbus North, 37-34

PRESIDENTS PUT UP VALIANT STRUGGLE

Bohyermen Display Brilliant Attack Against Polar Bear Quintet; Six Play Last Game.

By BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

A BRILLIANT Harding team was defeated by Columbus North High Saturday night in the championship game of the Central district class A basketball tournament at Delaware. The final score was 37-34. The victory enables North to enter the Ohio state tournament at Columbus next week and brings the 1932 Harding season to a close.

Flashing the most powerful attack displayed in 18 games this season, Harding put up a valiant battle against the rangy Polar Bear squad from the capital city. North managed to retain an advantage during practically all of the raging conflict but victory in the close was not decided until the final seconds of the game.

When the gun cracked to end the contest, it also sounded taps for the high school athletic careers of six members of the Harding varsity squad. Fred Vestal, Dick Morgan, Jack Ling, Don Lindsey, John Pickering, and Junior Clay donned the Red and Black for the final time against the Northmen.

To Carroll Owen, a guard on the North team, goes a major share of the credit for the defeat of Harding. Owen personally accounted for 12 points to lead the North scoring column but his value to his team's cause cannot be estimated on the basis of his scoring alone. He played a great floor game and was a constant thorn in the side of the Presidents.

Hero High Scorer

Harding presented no outstanding star. Billie Hero, midcourt forward, led the point getters with nine tallies but his work was hardly more valuable than that of the other members of the team.

Four players, three of them from North, were ejected from the game via the four foul rule. North had 18 fouls charged against its players while 13 were marked up against Harding. The foul rule violations were more the result of the lightning fast play than anything else. The game itself was unusually clean for such a torrid battle. Fred Vestal was the Harding player who committed the four personal fouls. Stark, Rhodes and Owens all had four charged against them, Owens' fourth coming just as the gun cracked to end the battle.

North took the lead as the game got under way when Eschenman slipped under the basket for a two pointer. Ling made the count 2-1 for North by dropping in a free throw and North added another basket to make the score 4-1. Another North bucket and free throw took the count to 7-1 for Polar Bears and Harding called time out to reorganize its defense.

Lindsey, Whitcomb Score

Maury Whitcomb and Don Lindsey sunk a pair of fielders for Harding and North added another pair of points to bring the count to 9-5. North dropped in another pair of field goals to make it 13-5. Whitcomb registered his second two pointer to bring the score to 13-7 as the period ended.

Jack Ling tossed in his first loosed a scoring spurt that accounted for two field goals and two free throws in rapid succession to snatch the lead from North and give Harding a 20-19 advantage. Owen promptly ended the locked count at 20-20 with another free throw and North then forged into another three-point advantage with a field goal and a charity toss. Don Lindsey scored his second field goal to take the count to 22-23 after which North rallied and battered its way to a 20-22 count. Hero dropped in another free throw to make Harding's total 23. The period ended with North leading 31-23.

Hero Scores Again

Hero registered a free throw as the last stanza got under way and North then ploughed ahead to a 33-24 advantage before the Presidents again launched a scoring drive that turned the contest into anybody's game. Whitcomb turned in a free throw and field goal and Morgan a free throw to bring the count to 28-33. Harding added another charity toss and North took time out as the Presidents threatened to again clinch the lead. Owens added two free throws for North and Harding accounted for another goal to bring the score

CINCINNATI FAILS IN ATTEMPTS TO TRADE CUCCINELLO, STRIPP

New Orleans Pitcher Attracts Cleveland Pilot's Eye by Good Work.

By The Associated Press
TAMPA, Fla. Efforts of the Cincinnati Reds to shunt holdouts Stripp and Cuccinello to the Brooklyn Dodgers apparently have failed.

Hopes for a fair infield crew jumped, however, with the arrival in camp of Joe Morrissey, shortstop from the American Association, and his acceptance of a salary 40 per cent above that he received in the minors last year.

The Reds tackled the Dodgers in the exhibition circuit yesterday, losing 5 to 3, chiefly on a wallop by Hack Wilson, making his first appearance in a Brooklyn uniform.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Although 30 Cleveland players got a chilly workout in yesterday's 5 to 5 tie with the New Orleans Pelicans, it was one of the Pels who got most of the interest of the Indians' management.

Steve Sundra, a sandlotter hurling for the Pels, but with a Cleveland string tied to him, allowed only two real hits and one of the scratch variety in three innings. It was his first professional experience.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—Jimmy McLaughlin and Lin Storti were engaged in a spirited baseball duel at the St. Louis Browns' camp here, for the position of shortstop.

CLEARWATER — If Arthur Jones, young North Carolinian, can keep up the good work he may simplify the problem facing Manager Max Carey of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Jones, a pitcher, turned in an impressive performance in yesterday's game with the Cincinnati Reds.

ST PETERSBURG — Pitching strength is what the New York Yankees need and perhaps it will be forthcoming from Walter Brown and Johnny Murphy. These two rookies held the Boston Braves hitless over the last five innings of an exhibition game.

LOS ANGELES — The 23-player limit has Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants perturbed. "I am going to have three catchers, nine pitchers, five outfielders and six infielders," says John. "Some good men will probably get away no matter what happens."

SAN ANTONIO — Bobby Poser, who joined the Chicago White Sox from the University of Wisconsin as a pitcher, probably will seek a place as an outfielder. Poser was used in left field during a practice contest yesterday, and did well enough to catch Manager Lew Fonseca's eye.

SCHOLASTIC TEAMS SEEK STATE CROWN

Ashland, of N. C. O. League, Among Entries in State Cage Tourney.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., March 14.—Sixteen high school basketball teams, survivors of county, sectional and district tournaments, will clash here Friday and Saturday in the annual Ohio scholastic championship meet.

The quintets comprise eight class A teams and a like number of class B fives. Akron East, Akron West, Columbus North, Ashland, Pomeroy, Zanesville, Defiance and Dayton Stivers survived the class A preliminaries in which Portsmouth High, last year's titlist, was eliminated.

Ostrander, Sugar Creek, Stewart, Rossford, Marquette, Dayton, Belmont, Garrettsville and North Canton, will fight it out for class B honors. Youngstown won the title in this division last year. Governor George White accepted an invitation to make the drawings for the meet. The title game will be played Saturday night.

Washington State college track and field men will appear in five northwest meets next spring and likely will compete in the mid-west.

NEW PITTSBURGH MANAGER NAMES GIANTS AS NATIONAL LEAGUE THREAT

BY GEORGE GIBSON

(Manager, Pittsburgh Pirates)
PITTSBURGH, Pa. Due to my newness in the National league, after an absence of several years, I feel that I shall have to be a little cautious in my guesses.

However, because I was not actively connected with the game during the past few years, does not mean that I am unfamiliar with the makeup of the major and higher minor league clubs, as I have followed baseball closely through the public press and feel I can make some pretty good predictions.

The New York Giants, with Gibson and Mooney added to the pitching staff and Lindstrom and Critz back in the lineup, will have a team that will be hard to keep out of the running.

The Phillies, with their team of last year intact, and some promising youngsters to call upon, will cause plenty of trouble as they did last year.

Under new management and with the addition of Hack Wilson to their string of hitters, Brooklyn should give a good account of themselves.

I feel sure the Cincinnati Reds will have a better club than last year and one that will be much harder to beat than during the past season.

The Braves have developed sev-

GREEN CAMP LOSES TOURNAMENT FINAL

Lima Beats Marion County Five in State Baptist Church Play.

The Green Camp Baptist Sunday school basketball team missed the state church championship by one point Saturday at Granville as it lost to Lima Baptists, 24-23 in a bitterly-fought contest. Lima has won the state championship three times in a row.

Eight teams were entered in the tourney at Granville and Green Camp was the only small village represented. The teams were Youngstown, Zanesville, Canton, Columbus, Dayton, Cincinnati, Lima and Green Camp.

Green Camp beat Canton in the first game, 15-10 and won from Columbus 19-12 in the second start. Lima then defeated the Marion county team.

Playing with Green Camp at Granville were Frank Earl and Paul Furness, Melvin Conwell, Martin Porter, Lawrence "Doc" Weiss, Gideon Long, Nelson and Howard Ritzler.

As for my own club Pittsburgh will have a much improved team. Sickness and injuries played a great part in their showing of the last two years.

As a whole, I look for a much closer race this year, as all teams will be much better balanced.

Twenty-one teams are entering the boys' and girls' divisions of the Marion county amateur basketball tournament to be held on Tuesday, March 15, at 8 p. m. at the Y. M. C. A. court starting at 7:30 p. m. There will be two divisions of play in the boys' division.

Class A division of the tournament leads the list of entrants with eight contestants. Entering the A division are Central Christian Sunday school champions of the Marion city league, Waldo Reformed, champions of the Marion county church league, Evans Buicks of Mt. Gilead, Frederick's Merchants of Fredericktown, Markert & Lewis of Marion, Green Camp Baptists, Caledonia M. E. and Martel.

Only two teams will compete in the class B competition. They are The Spartan Athletic club of Marion and Waldo Reformed Sunday school.

Class C entries are as follows: Casio Torch club, Vernon Aces, Central Phantom, Edison Junior High and Vernon Varsity.

Class D entries are Vernon Reserves, Central Seventh and Vernon Seventh.

Entries in the girls' tournament are Claridon Independents, Waldo Independents and Marion Barnes college.

Three games will be played in the first night of competition on Tuesday. One of the three will be a tournament game, Central Christians and Waldo Reformed will play a non-tourney contest to decide the city-county championship. The two tournament games will match the Casio Torch club with Vernon Aces at 7:35 and the Hayneville Buicks with Markert & Lewis at 8 p. m. The Christian-Waldo game will be the last of the three clashes.

Playing Time Not Set

The playing time of the tournament games, other than the two first night games has not been named. Pairings have been made and the first games for each of the teams will be as follows: Class A: Central Christians vs. Fredricktown Merchants; Waldo Buicks vs. Markert & Lewis; Waldo Reformed vs. Green Camp Baptists; Caledonia M. E. vs. Martel; Class B: Spartans vs. Waldo; Class C: Casio Torch club vs. Vernon Aces; Central Phantom vs. winner of Vernon-Casio game; winner of Vernon-Casio game vs. Edison Junior High vs. Vernon Varsity; Class D: Vernon Reserves vs. Central Seventh and Vernon Seventh vs. winner of Vernon Reserves-Central Seventh game.

Claridon Independents will play Waldo Independents in the first girls' tournament game and the Marion Business college will play the winners.

Rev. Summe Preaches Fifth Sermon in Lenten Series

Christ's question, "Whom do you say that I am?" asked of the men of His day on earth and today was the theme on which Rev. Father Edward H. Summe, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, based his sermon last night. The sermon was the fifth in a series of Lenten sermons delivered by Rev. Summe.

"The answer that would meet His question from the present generation would be a confusion, perhaps more enigmatic than the simple 'oriental' he said. 'Many think very little of Him. Some consider Him a great hero and a deliverer of His people, but it is to us that it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of God and we can not find words to express our admiration of His divinity.

"Yet it is a sad admission which we must make that a modern world of infidelity, heresy, and materialism seems to be denying all past ages in its denial of doctrinal truth. It has become a fact of late years among those who have a little smattering of knowledge beneath the guise of history, science of what they are pleased to call a higher Biblical criticism, to call in question and even deny all fundamental doctrines of traditional Christianity.

"They are like one who enters a beautiful cathedral and after having broken down all the columns, pulled the windows, defaced the altars, destroyed the pictures, and without any scientific warrant they literally tear from the sacred scriptures all that proves Christ to be divine and they say to us, 'He is a man and nothing more. Christ is a man and nothing more. All the Christians, all your scholars of the past 2000 years, all your saints and martyrs who have died in testimony of the truth have been severely duped.'

"Not only did Christ say that He was the Son of God but He proved it most conclusively by the miracles recorded in His life. The prophets of the old law and the apostles and saints of the new worked miracles but whenever they did it was always the power of God and in the name of Christ who sent them.
